offers

NCN research scholarship for the student of first-cycle, second-cycle or long-cycle Master's studies

Project description

In the project, we plan interdisciplinary basic research dedicated to discovering new structures, new ways of shaping and managing emissivity/absorptivity characteristics, and identifying the most suitable polymeric materials for future thermal management applications. The project's immediate goal is to develop a new type of nanostructured material which emissivity/absorptivity can be tuned on the fly. Such functionality will allow heating or cooling to temperatures different from ambient without electricity.
